MORE REINFORCEMENTS

BEING SENT TO LINEVITCH.

Thirteenth Army Corps Goes To The Front Next Week - Quiet Reigns Along the Fighting Line.

S. Petersburg, July 25.—Reinforcements for General Linevitch are steadily being forwarded. The thirteenth army corps headquarters of which are at Smolensk will leave for the front next week.

Tokio, July 25.—On Monday the army succeeded in dislodging the enemy from the neighborhood of Fuka and Puring and occupied the line northwards of Fusan. The past three months with both armies has been the most quiet portion of the entire war. There has been no engagement the only encounter being those of reconnoitering expeditions sent out by both armies. The Russian and Japanese lines are seven miles apart.

LACROSSE GAME

The Trojans were again victorious in the lacrosse game with Strathcona last evening, the score being three to one. The recent rains left the grounds in bad condition, the players found a great deal of difficulty in keeping their feet or picking up the ball. The game promised to be hotly contested from the start, and the crowd was evidently in ill humor. They jeered the visiting players instead of cheering their own, and it looked as though they had decided to hound against the visitors to excuse their own players who were apparently cut for blood. Ten men decorated the fence during the game and D. Corbett, who was referee, had no easy task, though many Strathcona people freely declared that his decisions were fair.

No goals were scored in the first quarter. In the second, the first goal was scored for the Trojans by Banford making a very nice play. The game remained even to nothing until the end of the third quarter. The Edmonton boys did some very nice passing in the first three quarters of the game. The players scarcely ran at all and they handled the ball beautifully. The trouble was though when it reached the ground it was hard to pick up.

The fourth quarter was the eventful one. After two minutes play Thompson scored another goal for the Trojans and one minute later Thompson put the ball in the net and made the score three to nothing. The captain of the Strathcona called to his players to "get out there men," and "slug him" was a favorite admonition from the crowd. After eight minutes play Campbell by a brilliant play, scored the only goal for Strathcona. Then the game grew furious and a few minutes later Campbell and Thompson were in a mix-up. The players clinched and rolled into the ditch with the crowd on top of them. Finally the tangled mass was straightened out and Campbell and Thompson went to the fence for the rest of the game. No more goals were scored and when the game was over the crowd melted away as if by magic.

The line up of the teams was as follows:

|          |              |          |
|----------|--------------|----------|

INTERIOR OFFICIALS

On motion of N. S. Lake, M.P., that Government officials should abstain from interference in politics. Mr. Oliver spoke as follows on July 17th.

(Hansard)

Hon. Frank Oliver (Minister of the Interior). While the motion is intended, I presume, to define the general policy of the administration on the matter at issue, the remarks of the honorable member seem to have been particularly directed to the officials of the Interior Department and the administration of that Department, and also to certain opinions I expressed in a previous debate. From the remarks I then made, the honorable gentleman appears to draw the conclusion that under my administration of the Department of the Interior, there has been not only persecution but encouragement to officials to take an active partisan part in election campaigns. I can only reply that I am not aware of anything I said which could give warrant for any such conclusion. On the contrary everything I did say pointed absolutely in the opposite direction. I would further say that the broad and general allegations the honorable gentleman has made against the officials of my department of partisanship and neglect of duty are completely met by the fact that while there never was a time in which the officials connected with the administration of affairs in the North West, have had so much to do as they have at present, neither was there over a time when we have had less complaint from any section of the people concerning the administration by these officials. As to the accusation that officials of the Interior Department have used their position either to threaten or to induce voters to cast their ballots for certain candidates, I assure the House that it is absolutely unfounded. The charge is a grave one, and if any honorable gentleman opposite can prove that any official of my department has used his position to threaten or induce voters to vote, I am prepared to dismiss that official. But when honorable members go beyond that and tell me that I should dictate to the officials of my department what opinions they should hold and what personal action they should take, they must admit that there is always an indefinite, undefined, line of division between the duties of an official as such and his rights as a citizen, which I cannot lay down here and which I cannot permit to have laid down for me by honorable gentlemen on the other side.

Mr. Foster. Will the honorable gentleman point out any demand made by any gentleman on this side that the private or political opinions of any officials of the Government should be supervised or controlled by the Government or in any way interfered with? That is not the position we take.

Mr. Oliver. I certainly understand it to be the position taken by honorable gentlemen opposite. In my judgment every citizen, whether a civil servant or not, has a right to his opinion and a right to express it and I shall not be a party in this House to refuse to any man the right to hold an opinion and express it within reasonable bounds.

Mr. Foster. Does the honorable gentleman contend that an official has the right to enforce that opinion by public or private canvass in a contested election?

Mr. Oliver. That is a matter which must be decided according to the occasion and the circumstances.

Mr. Foster. What occasion and circumstances?

Mr. Oliver. There will always be differences of opinions as to what constitutes a canvass. I am taking it for granted that, according to what honorable gentlemen opposite have laid down, the expression of an opinion by a Government official would be an act of active partisanship. Now, I will admit that it may be an act of active partisanship, and, as such, objectionable; and certainly in the administration of the department, I would object to officials taking an offensively active part in an election. But to say that I must dismiss an official because he has an opinion of his own and has expressed that opinion during an election—well, my honorable friends opposite must leave some right to the private citizen as well as to those who are administering the department.

Mr. Cochrane. He is not a private citizen, but a Government official.

Mr. Oliver. I have already said that it is my belief that the best work an official can do for the party, for the Government and for the country, is to attend to his own business and to attend to it well.

Mr. Lake. May I ask the minister a question? Do the restrictions he has mentioned apply to a public official appearing on a public platform or acting as the recognized agent at the polls of a candidate?

Mr. Oliver. It will depend on circumstances.

Some honorable members. Oh, oh.

Mr. Cochrane. He is not a private citizen, but a Government official.

Mr. Oliver. Not at all. There are positions and positions in the Interior Department, as there are in every other. Do honorable gentlemen opposite suggest that a country postmaster for instance, who takes an active part in an election shall thereby give reason for his dismissal?

Mr. Foster. The Postmaster General (Sir William Mulock) dismissed a postmaster of that kind on the ground of offensive partisanship.

Mr. Oliver. I am satisfied that the Postmaster General has retained in office hundreds who have acted in that way. So, in the Department of the Interior, there are men who are on salary and there are men who are working on commission. I certainly do not think that these two classes of employees should be included in the same category as to their freedom of action in these matters. There are men whose positions are such that by their taking an active interest an idea might be conveyed that the Government could be influenced by their views and the interests of the people affected. In that case greater care would need to be taken than in the case of an official concerning whom it would make no practical difference whether he was on one side or the other, except for his own good. I have given honorable gentlemen opposite every assurance that a minister can give fairness in the administration of this department and of care that the interests of the public shall not be prejudiced by the actions of officials. But to say that honorable gentlemen on the other side of the House shall here and now, from their places, dictate the future administration of the department is a different matter; and I say it would not be practicable for me to put myself in that position.

Mr. Lake. I have failed to say it hitherto. I want to say now, that the accusation that has been made so sweepingly against the officials of the Department of the Interior in the North West, has no reasonable justification. There may be instances in that large staff of objectionable actions. But on behalf of the officials of the Department of the Interior in the North West, I say here and now that, taking them as a whole, they are competent, they are trustworthy, and they have transacted the public business in good faith and to the advantage of the public.

Mr. Stockton. I would like to ask one question. In return of the election expenses for the opponent of my honorable friend from Qu'Appelle (Mr. Lake) in the last election there appears this item: Expenses R. B. Taylor attending meetings and visiting electors at Neudorf and Beeston, $16.

This gentleman is an official of the Department of the Interior. Would the honorable member (Mr. Oliver) think that conduct was allowable, or should this gentleman be subject to dismissal for taking an active part in an election?

Mr. Oliver. If I am permitted to speak again, I can only say that I cannot give off hand an answer to a question thus put out in the House. If honorable gentlemen opposite want to make a political and party issue of this, they have had a long session of six months in which to do it. They have had the committee on Agriculture and Colonization, the Public Accounts Committee and other means of examining into these questions. I am prepared to deal with all questions connected with the Department of the Interior; but I submit that to bring up such a question as this at this stage, when there can be no opportunity to either prove or disprove it, is not an evidence of good faith. It is an attempt if I judge it right, to unfairly prejudice the public mind on the subject. I know no more of the case referred to by the honorable gentleman (Mr. Stockton) than does any other member of the House. That being the case, it would be an outrageous proceeding on my part to commit myself to the dismissal of this officer, especially as I have said, honorable gentlemen opposite have had six months in which to substantiate any charge they desired to make against him or any other official of the department.

It is an attempt if I judge it right, to unfairly prejudice the public mind on the subject. I know no more of the case referred to by the honorable gentleman (Mr. Stockton) than does any other member of the House. That being the case, it would be an outrageous proceeding on my part to commit myself to the dismissal of this officer, especially as I have said, honorable gentlemen opposite have had six months in which to substantiate any charge they desired to make against him or any other official of the department.

THE USES OF AN OPPOSITION

For a paper which claims to devote its energies to the establishment of a non-party, work-in-harmony-and-without-any-opposition-Government for Alberta, the Calgary Herald occasionally accomplishes a feat. The latest happened on Saturday last when the Herald quoted disapprovingly from the Toronto News an article beginning thus:

Corruption in public administration is an evil which a vigilant Opposition in Parliament, and a fearless press, will always fight without ceasing. The idea that careful scrutiny into expenditures and deliberate debate upon the vote of money proposed by governments is a waste of time and evidence of a factious disposition is a mistake. Because neither party is free from reproach when in office gives no valid excuse for the abandonment of healthy and searching criticism. Allowed to go unchecked, corruption would soon destroy the state. Mr. Balfour's dilatory tactics before granting an inquiry into the South African army contract scandal the other day, were not to his credit. Exposure, followed by punishment, is the price of national safety in all such cases.

THE SALARY INCREASES

The movement which resulted in the increase of the seasonal indemnity to the members of Parliament and Senators probably grew out of the tendency to increase the length of the session. The seasonal allowance has not been and is not now designed as an annual salary for the member, but as a means for placing upon the public the expense which the servants of the public are forced to incur in the discharge of their duties. The sum, however, which recouped the expense of a three months session would not bear the expense of a six months session. The majority of the members of the House of Commons at any rate, are dependent upon private business enterprises for their present and future livelihood. To require them to absent themselves from all attention to those enterprises for one-half of every year might well be regarded by them with some concern. It is reasonable to suppose that the demands for a larger allowance originated in the heavier expense of longer sessions and in the longer absence from the private enterprises on which the financial fortunes of the members are dependent.

It is quite true that the length of the sessions has been in the hands of the members whose indemnities have been increased, but it is and must be purely a matter of judgment whether this prolongation has been in any case the preliminary step in a campaign for a larger allowance or has been due solely to a regard for public welfare or party advancement.

The criticism has been made that there are members of Parliament who are not worth and could not earn elsewhere $2,500 per year. This is probably true but it should not be true, and if it be true, the fault lies with the electors who placed them in the position.

Like most innovations, the increased indemnity may work in either of two ways, or both. It may encourage capable business men to enter the House who could not afford to neglect their private affairs for the former indemnity. On the other hand it may tend to the creation of a class of professional politicians living on their indemnity and dependent for advancement financial and otherwise solely on the fortunes of political life.

If the indemnity to members of Parliament was to be increased, else could scarcely be done than increase the Senatorial indemnity also.

The increase of the salaries of Cabinet Ministers and the provision of compensation to the Opposition leader, though put through at the same time as the indemnity increase are entirely different matters. It is commonly admitted that the public and social obligations incident to these positions consumed the time and remuneration and left the occupants nothing for their labor. Canada is or should be able and willing to pay living wages to her servants.

INAUGURAL CEREMONY

The arrangements for the inaugural celebration are fairly under way and appear very satisfactory, with one exception, and that an important consideration, the place chosen for the swearing-in ceremony and speech-making. To have this ceremony performed in front of a school where the spectators must stand throughout the ceremony and speeches will very largely destroy the pleasure of the proceedings. Hundreds, probably thousands of people will come to this city to attend this ceremony and hear the addresses of the leading Canadian statesmen, and to find that they must huddle themselves into a school yard and try to look over a hundred heads and shoulders to see or hear anything would be disappointing. For ladies to see or hear anything without being subject to the greatest discomforts would be impossible. If this ceremony took place on a platform erected close to and immediately in front of the grand stand over four thousand people could enjoy the crowning event of the day under comfortable circumstances. The question of the place for the ceremony and public speaking did not come up for consideration before the general committee Monday night, but it is hoped that the mayor, who is chairman of the committee, will see that consideration is given the matter. The people who come to the city on September 1 will be interested in the ceremony and public speaking, the decorations and the entertainment, but these are only incidental matters in the day. What they really come for is to witness the inaugural ceremony and hear the addresses of Canada's public men. To deprive them of this privilege by crowding them into a school yard would seriously mar the whole celebration.

LOCALS

—The school board met on Saturday when a resolution was passed favoring the removal of the old McKay avenue building to the new Norwood site.

—Free Press: Plans are being prepared for a handsome depot and office building for the Canadian Northern Railway company, which is to be erected at Edmonton. It will be the largest station building on the system outside of Winnipeg.

—Lethbridge, N.W.T., July 22.—The first machine cutting of winter wheat was begun yesterday by Geo. Henthcrahaw, of the Massey Harris Co., on the farm of E. Coleman, near Harvest. The winter wheat harvest will be in full swing next week throughout this district.

—The Despatch Advertising agency of Montreal have issued a newspaper directory for the Dominion. The booklet gives the names of Canadian newspapers, the owners, circulation and brief descriptions of the towns in which they are published. As the population of Edmonton is given as 2525 and the circulation of the semi-weekly Bulletin as 200 the statistics of the pamphlet would stand revision.

—Albertans: Calgary's need of a new police station could not be better exemplified than by the conditions that exist in the present inadequate quarters used by the city as a jail. For the past week the police have had under their charge a young woman charged with theft, and they have been obliged to keep her in custody in the filthy cells which are almost unfit for cattle.

—Indian Head Vidette: A sad occurrence took place on Thursday last at Wide Awake. Sadie, the little two-year-old daughter of W. H. Ford was playing with matches when her clothes took fire and she was cruelly burned before her father, who ran to her assistance, could extinguish the flame. Dr. Kemp was sent for but the little girl died on the following morning.

HOSPITAL SITE SECURED

Definite word has been received by Secretary Butehart, of the Public Hospital Board, that the Hudson's Bay Company's commissioners in England have approved of the proposed sale of the hospital site to the public hospital board here.

The site consists of eight lots, being the unsurveyed portion of block ten south of Saskatchewan avenue, and is 320 feet long, east and west by 200 feet wide.

The company is charging the nominal price of $100 for this piece of land, which is probably worth over three times that amount, and is also giving the hospital board practically the latter's own terms for the payment of the same.

The board will now proceed at once with preparations for the erection of a new and commodious hospital to accommodate about forty patients. The site is perhaps the best that could be selected in the city and the Board is to be congratulated on securing it and they are grateful for the generous treatment accorded them by the Hudson's Bay Company in the sale.

CRICKET

There will be no game next Saturday. The match "Married vs. Single" will take place instead on August 12.

The Edmonton cricket club committee which was reorganized last evening now consist of Messrs. O. L.

Boyes, Howard, Jones Mountfield and Reeves. The captain and secretary are also members ex-officio.

Practice on Tuesday and Thursday evenings will begin at 7.30 in future. The eleven and others are asked to turn up if possible on those days at that time.

It was also agreed that play in all Saturday afternoon matches should start no later than 2.30.

Next Saturday the first league game for the October Cup, between Strathcona and the Fort Saskatchewan cricket club will take place at the Fort.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR

Rev. R. T. Gardiner, who is travelling the British colonies under the direction of the Archbishop of Canterbury, to secure information about the condition of the Anglican church abroad, and promote closer unity with the mother church, left the city this morning. He has been here since Monday evening, and met the vestry of All Saints church last evening in the interests of his mission.

Rev. Gardiner was a chaplain with the British Army in the Boer war and saw much of the Canadian contingents during the battles. He was with Private Taylor, of Calgary, when he died, and he was near Trooper Mulloy, of Peterboro, Ont., when the latter lost his eyes from a Boer bullet.

The reverend gentleman's wide experience has peculiarly fitted him for the important task entrusted to him by the Archbishop and the result of his visit to the different colonies will no doubt prove very beneficial to the Anglican church as a whole.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Mrs. Coulter wishes to announce that having just arrived from Paris she is prepared to do dressmaking in a satisfactory manner. Next door to Red Cross Drug Store.

The shrewd speculator always has an eye open for a good thing in real estate. Thus it is that Norwood is active. Every one with an eye to business knows it is a dead sure thing. Think of the Rule of Three: Grand Trunk Pacific, C.N.R., and C.P.R. all about to enter our city, and add one more to the rule, "The Capital," and six of the principal streets wedge into Norwood.

Norwood will be the home of the skilled mechanic; it lies just five minutes walk from the C.N.R. facing First Street, all inside the city limits, where the shops, elevators, etc., will be located. These places will give employment to hundreds of skilled mechanics who have to live near their work. They will buy their houses in Norwood. 6 ft. sidewalks are already built to Norwood.

Lots are 33 x 150 First Street, and Sturgeon Road is 116 ft. wide. All other avenues and streets 66 ft. Lanes are 16 ft. wide, and every lot has a lane. Every purchaser gets an agreement direct from the original owner. Terms: 10 per cent down, five dollars per month. Lots from $60 to $150 without interest or taxes. This property is sure to advance quickly.

CURE FOR MUD ROADS

HOW TO MAKE A DRAG

Mr. D. Ward King Tells how to Make a Mud Road Good, in an Article in The Saturday Evening Post

D. Ward King, in a recent number of the Saturday Evening Post, has an article on spreading the gospel of good roads, and as his article deals particularly with mud roads, it might be very timely here and now. There is no doubt that the city streets need treatment of some sort, and the road to Fort Saskatchewan would stand some attention. Mr. Ward's method is so simple and inexpensive and he claims so much for it that it would be well worth trying. He backs up his assertions by very rational arguments and there seems to be no doubt he has himself made a success of the work.

The implement or drag with which the road is rounded up is made of a split log about nine or ten feet long and from ten to twelve inches thick. The log is sawn in two halves lengthwise. The two pieces are set on edge with the flat side to the front about thirty inches apart. They are fastened together by strong wooden bars mortised into each other and a platform of a plank or two placed on top for the driver to stand upon. A short chain is fastened to one end and a long one to the other with a ring to join the ends of the chains and fasten them to the double-tree. The length of the chain is arranged so the log will draw at an angle of about forty-five degrees. This drag is hauled along the side of the road, with the front end to the outside when the road is wet.

The importance of doing this work when the road is muddy and soaked with rain will be readily seen. If a hole in a mud road is filled up when it is dry the earth thrown in is loose and when the next shower of rain comes it puddles and makes a worse mud hole than before. On the other hand if the hole is filled with wet mud crushed into it, when that dries it hardens like a brick and sheds the water when next the rain falls. The advantage of a split log over a plank is that as it scrapes the mud into the rut one log mashes it down and leaves a better surface. The idea is to scrape the mud so as to round the road up to the centre and form a watered-out of it.

The work has to be frequently repeated and it is almost necessary to put on the drag after every rain as a mud road is not lasting under any conditions, but the work is so easily and quickly done that a frequent application of the scraper would be no hardship if it would keep the mud roads in anything like a passable condition. There would be nothing to hinder the farmers along the main roads into the city doing the work. Mr. King states that in his neighborhood every farmer does the work from his own gate to his neighbor's gate toward town, and the result is good roads to market. Their soil, he says, is a black prairie clay, and their roads were well nigh impassable before they use the drag.

The chairman of the streets and parks committee of the city might very easily make the experiment on some of the streets.

At the conclusion of his article Mr. King appends a few questions and answers that afford some particular information about his plan and they are here reproduced for the benefit of those interested in road or street improvement.

Would it not be better to plow the road before dragging?

No. Plowing gives a soft foundation. Plowing the middle of the road is a relic of the old dump-scrapers days.

What do you do when there are deep ruts in the road?

Drag them. If you drag the road when the surface is quite loose and soft you will be surprised how soon the ruts disappear.

How do you get the dirt into the middle of the road?

By hauling the drag slantwise with the end that is toward the centre of the road a little to the rear of the other end.

But suppose the road is too narrow?

First drag the wheel tracks. After three or four rains or wet spells, plow a shallow furrow just outside the dragged parts. Spread this over the road with a drag. Only plow one furrow. You may plow another furrow after the next rain. At each plowing you widen the road-bed two feet.

How many horses do you use?

Two, generally, but if it is just as handy, four when breaking coals—a good solid team in the centre and a colt on each side; two men on the drag—one to drive, the other to control the coils.

How do you drain the road?

If the earth is pushed in the middle of the road continually the road will drain itself.

Why not make the drag out of plank?

You can, and do good work. But the split log is best. The plank is not so stiff.

Why not make the drag of heavy sawed timber?

Because the drags so made have a tendency to slip over the bumps. Don't you grade up the road first?

No. The grading is done with the drag, gradually. By so doing the road is solid all the time, and is built on a solid foundation.

What does it cost to drag a mile of road a year?

The cost is variously estimated at from one to three dollars.

How do you keep the drag from dodging around sideways?

By not loading it too heavily. If a drag dodges around the curve you are moving it is because it is overloaded.
